

Legal Issues in Doing Business Overseas

You are invited to attend an informational breakfast seminar on Legal Issues in Doing Business Overseas. Come learn about the legal issues companies face when conducting business globally, as well as relevant U.S., foreign, and international law and contract issues.

Thursday, December 3, 2009
8:00 – 10:00 a.m. at the offices of Hiscock & Barclay

One Park Place/Syracuse, NY (live)
50 Beaver Street/Albany, NY (videoconference)
2000 HSBC Plaza/100 Chestnut Street/Rochester, NY (videoconference)
1100 M&T Center/3 Fountain Plaza/Buffalo, NY (videoconference)
Seven Times Square/New York, NY (videoconference)

Topics to be covered in the presentation include:

- An overview on Legal Issues for U.S. exporters
- Unique risks in International Contracts

If you would like to attend, please RSVP by Monday, November 30 to Lisa Pritchard at (800) 727-2131 x2781 or lpritchard@hblaw.com.

Presenter

Richard J. Paul
Attorney, Hiscock & Barclay, LLP

Richard J. Paul: Mr. Paul is a Partner in the Firm's Syracuse office and has experience in all facets of business and commercial law, with a particular emphasis on international transactions. He advises clients on international business matters and counsels them on the unique issues companies contend with when doing business overseas. Mr. Paul has a lengthy representation of one of the leading U.S. Defense Contractors in support of their international business pursuits. He has traveled extensively to conduct negotiations and assist clients in pursuing business opportunities in numerous countries around the world. In doing so, he has forged relationships with lawyers in many countries which enable him to obtain country-specific legal advice on behalf of clients. Mr. Paul frequently speaks on international contract and legal issues, and has developed and conducted international contract training courses for companies doing business overseas.